What do brews, beauty and bikes have to do with the Fort Collins, Colorado, economy? Everything.

In this webinar hosted by the Smart Growth Network, participants will learn how Fort Collins uses its existing assets to foster entrepreneurship and innovation, encourage business growth from within the community and support investments that reinforce the qualities that attract so many people to the city in the first place.

Join Deputy City Manager Jeff Mihelich and Economic Health Director Josh Birks as they outline Fort Collins’ approach to optimizing the city’s economic, environmental and social well-being.
